Comments:

It's clear that he understands when we are confused, but he doesn't do a good job clearing up the confusion. He is clearly very smart, but doesn't know when to take a break from the convoluted vocabulary and explanation to explain something concisely and simply.

Comments:

The prompts for our formal essays were sometimes two pages, front and back. It was so convoluted that when you would take it to the Writing Center for help, (Not the writing fellows), but yes, the WRITING CENTER, they didn't know how to help us. There was an instance where a writing consultant literally read the prompt and said, "Yeah, I have no idea what he is asking you to do for this paper". I would have asked the instructor himself for clarification but he isn't very approachable. He would either say, "We went over this in class", which of course wasn't any help because his explanations on what to do were more complex than the 4 page prompt itself, or he would make you feel dumb for not understanding.

Comments:

He isn't very organized. On one of my reading responses regarding an article, he wrote (Verbatim) the comment, "Do you know have a good sence of why it is not allowed? If not, let's discuss it in class". It honestly kind of baffles me that the instructor of a WRITING COURSE is using wrong words and simple misspellings. This makes me feel like he was writing the response as he was walking to our class that already started.

Comments on instructor - MATTHEW BADDORF

What are the major strengths of this instructor?

He got me angry enough to try super hard on all of my assignments. It was more to spite him than me actually caring about the material though...

Please share any suggestions for improvement

Be more clear on what he wants from assignments. He also shouldn't call students out on things that he himself doesn't know how to do. He should have an equal respect for his students. He doesn't necessarily have favorites in the class, but he treats students he doesn't care for differently. No one in the class acts out or shares thoughts that aren't relevant. Everyone is very professional and respectful to one another and he should treat his students the same.
